

ABSTRACT

In connection with a mechanical blood pressure measuring device having a pressure measuring cell with a pressure indicator for measuring the course of pressure and an operating unit with a pressure generating device and a pressure regulating device, the pressure measuring cell and the operating unit are releasably connected with each other. The pressure measuring cell and the operating unit can be connected with each other in two positions which are turned by 180° in respect to each other.